1. The first part of the paper is devoted to a discussion of the general principles of the theory of the structure of the crystal lattice. It is shown that the structure of the crystal lattice is determined by the nature of the chemical bonds between the atoms. The nature of the chemical bonds is determined by the electronic structure of the atoms. The electronic structure of the atoms is determined by the number of electrons and the arrangement of the electrons in the atomic orbitals. The arrangement of the electrons in the atomic orbitals is determined by the Pauli exclusion principle and the Coulomb repulsion between the electrons. The Pauli exclusion principle states that no two electrons can occupy the same quantum state. The Coulomb repulsion between the electrons tends to keep the electrons apart. The balance between the Pauli exclusion principle and the Coulomb repulsion determines the electronic structure of the atoms. The electronic structure of the atoms determines the nature of the chemical bonds between the atoms. The nature of the chemical bonds determines the structure of the crystal lattice.

2. The second part of the paper is devoted to a discussion of the specific properties of the crystal lattice. It is shown that the specific properties of the crystal lattice are determined by the nature of the chemical bonds between the atoms.

The first of these is the fact that the number of people who are employed in the service of the government has increased very rapidly in recent years. This is due to the fact that the government has been expanding its activities in many different directions. For example, it has been increasing its expenditure on education, health, and social welfare. It has also been increasing its expenditure on defence and foreign affairs. All of these activities require a large number of people to carry them out. This is why the number of people employed in the service of the government has increased so rapidly.

The second of these is the fact that the number of people who are employed in the service of the private sector has also increased very rapidly in recent years. This is due to the fact that the private sector has been expanding its activities in many different directions. For example, it has
 research and development, and on advertising and sales. It has also been increasing its expenditure on capital equipment and on infrastructure. All of these activities require a large number of people to carry them out. This is why the number of people employed in the service of the private sector has increased so rapidly.
